What Is the Council?

The Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada (SSHRC) was created in June 1977, by Act of Parliament. It began operations in April 1978 and took over the programs administered by the humanities and social sciences division of the Canada Council. Under the Act, the SSHRC, the Medical Research Council and the Natural Sciences and Engineering Research Council administer federal funds for university-based research and other scholarly activity.

The SSHRC is governed by a 22-member appointed Council chosen from the academic community and major interest sectors of society. An Advisory Academic Panel is broadly representative of the various disciplines in the humanities and social sciences.

The Council is primarily a grant-giving body whose funds are voted by Parliament. It reports to Parliament through the Secretary of State. Its mandate, in the terms of section 5 of the Government Organization (Scientific Activities) Act, 1976, is to "promote and assist research and scholarship in the social sciences and humanities; and to advise the Minister in respect of such matters relating to such research as the Minister may refer to the Council for its consideration."

In order to promote and assist Canadian research and scholarship in the social sciences and humanities, the Council has undertaken to

- support such discipline-based research as in the judgment of scholars will best advance knowledge;
- encourage research on subjects which the Council, in consultation with the academic community, considers to be of national importance;
- facilitate communication among scholars in Canada and abroad, and stimulate dissemination of the results of research;
- assist in, and advise on, maintaining and developing the national capacity for research.

In pursuit of these goals, the Council administers programs of fellowships for research training and research resources and support, and grants for research, international scholarly exchanges, scholarly publishing, conferences and other research-related activities. In addition, the Council conducts inquiries and performs a leadership role in research policy in Canada, and fulfils a liaison function with government and the scholarly community.

Qu'est-ce que le Conseil ?

Le Conseil de recherches en sciences humaines du Canada a été institué en 1977 par la Loi d'action scientifique du Gouvernement (1976). En avril 1978, le nouveau Conseil a pris en charge l'administration des programmes gérés par la division des humanités et sciences sociales du Conseil des Arts. Avec le Conseil de recherches médicales et le Conseil de recherches en sciences naturelles et en génie, le CRSH constitue le triptyque de l'organisation des subventions fédérales à la recherche universitaire.

Le CRSH est régi par un Conseil de 22 membres choisis parmi la communauté universitaire et divers autres secteurs de la société. Une Commission consultative des affaires universitaires est constituée de membres provenant des diverses disciplines des sciences humaines.

Le CRSH est essentiellement un organisme de subventions qui obtient ses fonds par crédits du Parlement. Le Conseil se rapporte au Parlement par l'intermédiaire du Secrétaire d'État.

Selon les termes de sa loi constituante, le mandat du CRSH est "de promouvoir et de soutenir la recherche et l'érudition dans le domaine des sciences humaines; de conseiller le Ministre sur les aspects de cette recherche que ce dernier lui demande d'examiner" (Loi d'action scientifique du gouvernement, 1976, article 5).

Dans le but de promouvoir et de soutenir la recherche et l'érudition dans les sciences humaines au Canada, le Conseil a voulu s'engager à favoriser :

- la recherche axée sur les disciplines qui de l'avis des spécialistes peut le mieux assurer l'avancement de la connaissance;
- la recherche sur des thèmes que le Conseil, à la suite de consultations assidues auprès de la communauté universitaire, considère d'importance nationale;
- les échanges entre chercheurs, du pays et de l'extérieur, et la diffusion des résultats de la recherche;
- le maintien et le développement d'un réseau national de chercheurs et de services à la recherche.

Le fonctionnement du Conseil comporte l'administration de programmes de bourses d'études et de subventions de recherche, de rencontres ou de publications, qui correspondent à l'objectif et aux buts qu'il s'est tracés. Le Conseil réalise en plus des études particulières et joue un rôle de leader dans la politique de recherche au Canada, et maintient des liens constants avec le gouvernement et la communauté des chercheurs.

The President's Foreword

The year 1985-86 saw the final preparation and presentation of the Five-Year Plan and the Government's reaction, expressed in the Budget and follow-up by the Ministers responsible for the three granting Councils.

Although there was some disappointment in academe, Government decisions represented a remarkable victory. The budget was not cut, in a time of severe restraint; indeed, $3 million was added to the base in 1985-86 and is guaranteed for five years. The separate existence of the Council, still reporting to Parliament through the Secretary of State, was confirmed. And the matching funds scheme, starting in 1987-88, offered an opportunity to involve the private sector in supporting social sciences and humanities research. Secretary of State Benoît Bouchard gave examples of private sector areas which benefit directly, or could, from human sciences analysis: insurance companies; banks; legal firms; and companies seeking overseas markets. The Council, at year end, was studying the matching funds scheme so as to take full advantage of it, in the context of the Five-Year Plan.

The Council was heartened by the Government's tacit recognition that research in the social sciences and humanities frequently has direct economic as well as social and cultural benefits. In its positive reaction to the matching funds initiative, however, the Council made clear that its priority commitment to the funding of discipline-oriented research has not changed.

Discussion with the community, especially when a major policy or program change is mooted, is a Council principle. When the Special Committee on Research Grants (the Crocker Committee) proposed a comprehensive package of reforms, there was some criticism. Council's response was to reconsider its July, 1985 decisions and modify them where possible. The Committee, however, had to advise on processes and programs at a time when the level of funds had been virtually frozen for several years. Applications had increased almost 50 per cent and it was known that Council would have to cut its staff by 10 per cent over the next five years. The Committee proposals were designed to simplify procedures, provide for better evaluation of research results, distribute work loads better, enrich officers' jobs and make better use of resources.

Avant-propos du Président

L'année 1985-1986 a vu la préparation finale et la présentation du Plan quinquennal du financement de la recherche. La réaction du gouvernement s'est fait connaître dans le budget et les ministres responsables des trois conseils subventionnaires ont assuré le suivi.

Bien que les décisions gouvernementales aient provoqué une certaine déception dans la communauté universitaire, elles constituent, cependant, une remarquable victoire. En cette période de sévères restrictions, le budget n'a pas été réduit et une somme de 3 millions de dollars a même été ajoutée au budget de base de 1985-1986 et est garantie pour une période de cinq ans. En outre, le mandat distinct du Conseil, se rapportant toujours au Parlement par l'intermédiaire du Secrétariat d'État, a été confirmé. Le principe du jumelage des fonds qui débuterait en 1987-1988 donne au secteur privé l'occasion d'appuyer les recherches en sciences humaines. Le Secrétaire d'État Benoît Bouchard a donné des exemples d'organismes du secteur privé qui bénéficient directement ou qui bénéficieraient de la recherche en sciences humaines : les sociétés d'assurance, les banques, les bureaux d'avocats et les entreprises qui cherchent à percer des marchés internationaux. À la fin de l'année, le Conseil étudiait le principe du jumelage des fonds, de sorte à en tirer le plus d'avantages possible dans le cadre du Plan quinquennal.

Le fait que le gouvernement reconnaisse tacitement que la recherche en sciences humaines engendre souvent des avantages économiques directs ainsi que des avantages sociaux et culturels a incité le Conseil à poursuivre ses efforts. Tout en réagissant positivement au principe du jumelage des fonds, le Conseil a toutefois réaffirmé qu'il accordait une importance prioritaire au financement de la recherche axée sur les disciplines.

Le Conseil a pour principe qu'il est essentiel de discuter avec les chercheurs, particulièrement quand une importante modification de politique ou de programme est envisagée. La présentation d'un ensemble complet de réformes par le Comité spécial sur les subventions de recherche (le Comité Crocker), a soulevé quelques critiques. Le Conseil a accepté de reconsidérer les décisions qu'il avait prises en juillet 1985 et de les modifier dans la mesure du possible. Le Comité avait dû recommander des méthodes et des programmes à une époque où le financement était pratiquement gelé pour plusieurs années. Les demandes avaient augmenté de près de 50 pour cent et le Conseil avait appris qu'il devrait réduire son personnel de 10 pour cent au cours des cinq années à venir. Les propositions du Comité visaient la simplification des procédures administratives, une meilleure évaluation des résultats de recherche, une meilleure distribution de la charge de travail, l'enrichissement de la tâche des agents et une meilleure utilisation des ressources.

The changes in their final form saw the abolition of the Leave Fellowships program (partially replaced by a modified form of Research Time Stipend for eligible research grants recipients) and the reduction of Research Grants competitions to one a year. The principle and practice of peer review were maintained, with a minimum of two external assessors consulted.

Part of the problem in the discussion of the Crocker recommendations was a misunderstanding of the effects of the Leave Fellowships program. Abolition, it was argued, would hurt younger scholars in particular. Statistics suggest, however, that the program discriminated against younger scholars. For 1983-84, 50 per cent of Leave Fellowships went to full professors, 41 per cent to associate professors and 9 per cent to assistant professors. Awards for 1984-85 were 56 per cent, 37 per cent and 7 per cent respectively.

It was necessary during the year to dispel other myths: for example, that Quebec researchers, small universities and women were under-represented on our adjudication committees. Here the statistics show a solid representation of the above groups. I have written to the research community on these issues, hoping to make the point that we cannot afford arguments arising from ignorance of data.

The focus on the Five-Year Plan tended to blur other elements of what was a very active year. Council representatives participated in many major meetings, including the AUCC Charlottetown meeting; the National Conference on Research Funding for the Humanities and Social Sciences at the University of Alberta; the CAUT conference in Toronto; and the national meeting of small universities at Saint Mary's University, Halifax. The Council was again strongly in evidence at the gatherings of the Learned Societies and the Association canadienne-française pour l'avancement des sciences (ACFAS).

An important international contribution was a report on Social Sciences in the People's Republic of China, just one event in a major publishing year. The Five-Year Plan, the report on Council Support of the Social Science Federation of Canada and the Canadian Federation for the Humanities, and the Crocker Committee report were major policy and planning documents. The Report of the Advisory Committee on Archives was well received but the pride of place went to On the Treatment of the Sexes in Research. The first printing of 10,000 lasted six weeks; the second is almost exhausted.

Les modifications finales furent : a) l'abolition du programme des bourses de travail libre (en partie remplacé par l'allocation de dégagement, accordée aux personnes admissibles à une subvention de recherche); et b) la tenue d'un seul concours annuel pour les subventions de recherche. Le principe et la méthode d'évaluation par les pairs ont été maintenus et comprennent la consultation d'au moins deux appréciateurs externes.

Le problème dans la discussion soulevée par les recommandations du Comité Crocker venait, en partie, d'une méprise concernant les effets de l'abolition du programme des bourses de travail libre. En effet, on soutenait que cette abolition serait préjudiciable aux jeunes chercheurs. Les statistiques démontrent toutefois que le programme ne favorisait pas les jeunes chercheurs. En 1983-1984, 50 pour cent des bourses ont été accordées à des professeurs titulaires, 41 pour cent à des professeurs agrégés et 9 pour cent à des professeurs adjoints. Pour 1984-1985, les pourcentages sont respectivement de 56 pour cent, 37 pour cent et 7 pour cent.

Il a également fallu dissiper d'autres croyances, par exemple celle voulant que les chercheurs du Québec, les petites universités et les femmes soient insuffisamment représentés au sein des comités de sélection. Les statistiques démontrent une participation active de la part de ces groupes. J'ai écrit une lettre aux chercheurs à ce sujet, en espérant ainsi faire valoir que nous ne pouvons permettre une controverse dont les arguments ne reposent sur aucune donnée précise.

L'attention étant concentrée sur le Plan quinquennal, d'autres éléments de cette année très active ont été passés presque sous silence. Les représentants du Conseil ont participé à un grand nombre de réunions importantes, entre autres : la réunion de l'Association des universités et collèges du Canada (AUCC) tenue à Charlottetown, la Conférence nationale pour le financement de la recherche en sciences humaines à l'Université d'Alberta, la conférence de l'ACPU à Toronto et la réunion nationale des petites universités à l'Université Saint Mary's à Halifax. La présence du Conseil a une fois de plus été très remarquée aux réunions des Sociétés savantes et de l'Association canadienne-française pour l'avancement des sciences (ACFAS).

L'année en cours a vu la publication d'un grand nombre de documents, entre autres, Les sciences sociales en République Populaire de Chine qui constituait une importante contribution sur le plan international. Le Plan quinquennal, l'Aide accordée par le Conseil à la Fédération canadienne des sciences sociales et à la Fédération canadienne des études humaines et le rapport du Comité Crocker constituent des documents importants en matière de politique et de planification. Le Rapport du Comité consultatif sur les archives a reçu un bon accueil, mais Le traitement objectif des sexes dans la recherche a pris la place d'honneur. Les 10 000 exemplaires du premier tirage se sont envolés en six semaines et le deuxième tirage est presque épuisé. Le sujet

The unique nature of Margrit Eichler's and Jeanne Lapointe's booklet led to international reviews and many orders. Also reprinted were Ethics, Women in the Labour Force and Survey Research.

Council membership underwent a "sea change" during the year, with four Councillors reaching the end of their mandates and one resigning, and with five new appointments to add to the five named at the end of the last fiscal year. At year end, Council membership, at 18, was at its highest level in several years. I paid tribute to Robert Crocker and Gerald Kristianson last year. Others leaving were: Naomi Black, whose longest-lasting legacy undoubtedly will be her determination to sensitize the community on the importance of the treatment of the sexes in research; and Elizabeth Arthur, who brought a balanced, historian's, view to Council's knottier problems. We were very sorry to lose the calm, scholarly perspective of Gilles Marcotte, who resigned for personal reasons. On behalf of Canada's research community, I extend thanks to them all.

New Councillors appointed were: Peter M. Butler, of Halifax, senior advisor for post-secondary education to the Government of Nova Scotia; Judith E.R. Hendin, a lawyer in the Ottawa partnership of Hendin & Hendin; J.-Pierre Hogue, of the École des Hautes Études commerciales, Montreal; Frank Joseph Ledwell, of the English Department, University of Prince Edward Island; and Alphonse Riverin, rector of the Université du Québec à Chicoutimi.

The Council's own thanks go to the research community, especially to that very active part of it which made research needs known to Members of Parliament and public servants, through letters, phone calls and personal meetings. The Council received copies of more than 750 letters from university presidents, faculty and students in the period October-December, 1985, alone and one letter had 238 signatures. Thirty more were received from associations, with hundreds or thousands of members. This support was essential in the year of decision on five-year financing. It will be equally important as the Council responds to the matching funds challenge the Government has offered.

exceptionnel du document de Jeanne Lapointe et de Margrit Eichler a fait l'objet de nombreuses commentaires et commandes internationales. Déontologie, Women in the Labour Force et Enquêtes-sondages ont également été réimprimés.

La composition du Conseil s'est sensiblement transformée au cours de l'année. En effet, quatre membres ont quitté à l'expiration de leur mandat, un membre a démissionné et cinq membres nouvellement désignés se sont ajoutés aux cinq autres nommés à la fin du dernier exercice financier. Composé de 18 membres à la fin de l'année, le Conseil n'avait pas compté un aussi grand nombre de membres depuis plusieurs années. L'année dernière, j'ai rendu hommage à Robert Crocker et à Gerald Kristianson. Les autres départs sont : Naomi Black, dont l'héritage le plus durable sera sans doute sa détermination à sensibiliser le public à l'importance du traitement objectif des sexes dans la recherche; et Elizabeth Arthur qui a apporté la perspective équilibrée d'une historienne aux problèmes les plus épineux du Conseil. Nous avons été très peinés d'apprendre la démission pour des raisons personnelles de Gilles Marcotte, qui donnait au Conseil une opinion posée et un point de vue éclairé. Au nom des chercheurs canadiens, j'exprime mes remerciements les plus sincères à ces anciens membres du Conseil.

Les nouveaux membres nommés au Conseil sont : Peter M. Butler de Halifax, conseiller principal en éducation post-secondaire auprès du gouvernement de la Nouvelle-Écosse, Judith E.R. Hendin de Ottawa, avocate associée à l'étude Hendin et Hendin, J.-Pierre Hogue de l'École des Hautes Études commerciales de Montréal, Frank Joseph Ledwell du département d'anglais de l'Université de l'Île-du-Prince-Édouard et Alphonse Riverin, recteur de l'Université du Québec à Chicoutimi.

Le Conseil tient à remercier les chercheurs et particulièrement ceux qui ont le plus activement fait connaître aux députés et aux fonctionnaires les besoins en matière de recherche, au moyen de lettres, d'appels téléphoniques et de rencontres personnelles. Au cours de la seule période d'octobre à décembre 1985, le Conseil a reçu des copies de plus de 750 lettres provenant de recteurs d'université, de professeurs et d'étudiants (l'une d'entre elles portait 238 signatures). Trente autres lettres provenaient d'associations comptant des centaines ou des milliers de membres. Il s'agissait d'un appui primordial en cette année où devait se prendre la décision d'accorder un financement pour une période de cinq ans. Cet appui revêt également une grande importance alors que le Conseil doit répondre au défi que représente la croissance de son budget en vertu du principe du jumelage des fonds.

I close with a salute to Canadian researchers. In my foreword to the 1984-85 Annual Report, I noted that the Council had received international kudos with the publication, in Germany, of Margit L. McCorkle's thematic-bibliographical catalogue of the works of Johannes Brahms, the research for which had received Council support over a number of years. Mrs. McCorkle's work has been recognized many times since then, and she has recently been awarded the Cross of the Order of Merit of the Federal Republic of Germany.

J'achève en citant une mention très honorable en ce qui concerne le travail des chercheurs canadiens. Comme il a été noté dans le Rapport annuel de 1984-1985, la renommée internationale du Conseil s'est accrue avec la publication, en Allemagne, du catalogue thématique et bibliographique des oeuvres de Johannes Brahms par Margit L. McCorkle. Le Conseil avait financé les recherches depuis plusieurs années. Le travail de Mme McCorkle lui a valu plusieurs éloges depuis, dont la plus récente est l'attribution de la Croix de l'Ordre du mérite de la République fédérale allemande.

The Council was established in 1977 by the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council Act and is a departmental corporation named in Schedule B to the Financial Administration Act. The objective of the Council is to promote and assist research and scholarship in the social sciences and humanities.

The operating and grants expenditures are funded by budgetary lapsing authorities. Employee benefit plans contributions are authorized by a statutory authority.

2. Accounting policies

The statement of operations has been prepared using the following accounting policies:

(a) Expenditure recognition

Grants are charged to expenditure when disbursed. Operating expenditure is recorded on an accrual basis, in accordance with the Government's PAYE accounting policy, except for employee termination benefits and vacation pay which are recorded on the cash basis.

(b) Capital purchases

Acquisition of office furniture and equipment is recorded as operating expenditure in the year of purchase.

(c) Services provided without charge by other departments

3. Changes in financial statement presentation

The financial statement presentation has been changed in 1986 to comply to new standards of presentation required by the Receiver General for Canada, and to display more clearly the nature of Council's activities. Operating expenditures are now segregated between operations and administration.

Charged to operations is expenditure relating to Council and its committees, evaluation and general processing of applications for grants and scholarships.

Charged to administration is expenditure relating to the Council's administrative and support services such as management systems, finance, administration and personnel.

Figures for 1985, presented for comparative purposes, have been restated to conform to the 1986 presentation.

Notes afférentes à l'état des résultats d'exploitation du 31 mars 1986

1. Pouvoirs et objectif

Le Conseil a été constitué en 1977 en vertu de la Loi du Conseil de recherches en sciences humaines et est un établissement public nommé à l'annexe B de la Loi sur l'administration financière. L'objectif du Conseil est de promouvoir et de soutenir la recherche et l'érudition dans le domaine des sciences humaines.

Les dépenses de fonctionnement et de subventions sont financées par le biais d'autorisations budgétaires annuelles. Les contributions aux régimes de prestations des employés sont autorisées par une autorisation statutaire.

2. Conventions comptables

L'état des résultats d'exploitation a été préparé en utilisant les conventions comptables suivantes :

(a) Comptabilisation des dépenses

Les subventions sont imputées aux dépenses lorsqu'elles sont versées. À l'exception des indemnités de cessation d'emploi et de congés payés qui sont comptabilisés sur une base de caisse, les dépenses de fonctionnement sont comptabilisées sur une base d'exercice, selon la convention comptable des CAPAFE du gouvernement.

(b) Achats d'immobilisations

L'acquisition d'ameublement de bureau et de matériel est imputée aux dépenses de fonctionnement de l'exercice d'acquisition.

(c) Services fournis gratuitement par d'autres ministères

Les montants estimatifs de services fournis gratuitement au Conseil par les ministères sont compris dans les dépenses de fonctionnement.

(d) Recouvrements de dépenses d'exercices précédents

Les recouvrements de dépenses d'exercices précédents sont comptabilisés à titre de recettes dès leur réception et ne sont pas déduits des dépenses.

(e) Régime de retraite

Les employés participent au Régime de pension de retraite de la Fonction publique administré par le Gouvernement du Canada. Les employés et le Conseil contribuent à part égale aux coûts du régime. Les contributions du Conseil sont enregistrées aux dépenses sur une base courante.

3. Modification de la présentation de l'état financier

En 1986, la présentation de l'état financier du Conseil a été modifiée de manière à respecter les nouvelles normes de présentation edictées par le Receveur général du Canada, et à exposer plus clairement la nature des activités du Conseil. Les dépenses de fonctionnement se répartissent maintenant entre l'exploitation et l'administration.

Les dépenses liées au Conseil et ses comités, à l'évaluation et au traitement général des demandes de subventions et de bourses sont imputées à l'exploitation.

Les dépenses liées aux services d'administration et de soutien comme les services financiers, systèmes de gestion, personnel et administration sont imputées à l'administration.

Les chiffres de l'exercice 1985, présentés pour fins de comparaison ont été modifiés de manière à respecter la présentation utilisée pour l'exercice 1986.

Research Grants Division

The Research Grants Division's programs and procedures were the subject of a major review which, in turn, was the subject of a major research community discussion. The report of the Special Committee on Research Grants (the Crocker Committee) proposed a comprehensive package of reforms to rationalize the many changes which had taken place in the program over the years. It was known, too, that Council would have to reduce staff by 10 per cent over the next five years. The Committee proposals were designed to simplify procedures for applicants as well as for staff, to distribute work loads better, enrich officers' jobs and provide for better evaluation of research results.

Council approved the report in July but refined its decisions in December, as a result of community representations. The major final changes were the abolition of the Leave Fellowships program (partially replaced by a modified form of Research Time Stipend) and the introduction of a single annual research grants competition. The principle and practice of peer review were maintained, with two external assessors consulted. A bridging arrangement was made for those applicants with on-going projects to enable them to adjust to the new competition cycle.

Following are some examples of new research projects.

Literary writing in this country has a long history, and Canadian researchers have been diligently recording it. Individual authors, literary movements, and the Canadian stage were again, in 1985-86, the subject of many research projects funded by the Council.

An example of the interest accorded to the discussion and documenting of Canadian literary works is the forthcoming publication in the Oxford series, The Oxford Companion to Canadian Drama and Theatre. Edited by Eugene Benson and Leonard Conolly, of Guelph University's drama department, the 380,000-word illustrated guide is the work of a hundred scholars, critics, directors, administrators, designers and theatre architects. Some 550 entries, "in concise, literate and lucid prose," will appeal to the general reader and specialist, and will demonstrate the importance of drama in our social and cultural life. Historical, biographical and critical summaries will cover drama from Balconville to Zastrozzi, from television to Acadian theatre,

La Division des subventions de recherche

Les programmes et les procédures de la Division des subventions de recherche ont fait l'objet d'une révision importante qui a soulevé de longues discussions dans la communauté de recherche. Le Comité spécial sur les subventions de recherche (Comité Crocker) a proposé dans son rapport un ensemble complet de réformes en vue de rationaliser les nombreux changements qu'a subi le programme au cours des ans et de tenir compte de la réduction de l'effectif de 10 pour cent imposée au Conseil au cours des cinq prochaines années.

Le Comité a conçu les propositions de façon à simplifier les formalités à suivre par les requérants et le personnel, à réduire les charges de travail, à enrichir les fonctions des agents et à mieux évaluer les résultats des recherches.

Le Conseil a approuvé le rapport en juillet, mais il a raffiné ses décisions en décembre à la suite de représentations faites par des membres de la communauté de recherche. Les principaux changements définitifs sont l'abolition du programme des bourses de travail libre (partiellement remplacé par une forme modifée de l'allocation de dégagement de recherche) et la réduction à un concours par année pour les subventions de recherche. Le principe et la pratique de révision par les collègues sont maintenus, deux évaluateurs de l'extérieur étant consultés. Des subventions d'appoint ont été versées aux requérants qui travaillaient à des projets continus afin de leur permettre de s'adapter au nouveau cycle de concours.

La littérature a, dans notre pays, une longue histoire que les chercheurs canadiens ont soigneusement retracée. Les auteurs, les mouvements littéraires et les oeuvres théâtrales ont encore fait l'objet de nombreux projets de recherche subventionnés par le Conseil en 1985-1986.

Un exemple de l'intérêt accordé à la discussion et à la documentation d'oeuvres littéraires est la publication prochaine dans la série Oxford du document intitulé The Oxford Companion to Canadian Drama and Theatre. Édité par Eugene Benson et Leonard Conolly, du département de théâtre de l'Université Guelph, ce guide illustré de 380 000 mots regroupe les travaux de centaines de professeurs, de critiques, de directeurs, d'administrateurs, de décorateurs et d'architectes du domaine théâtral. Environ 550 rubriques en prose clair, concise et littéraire intéresseront aussi bien le grand public que le spécialiste et démontreront l'importance du théâtre dans notre vie culturelle et sociale. Les sommaires historiques, biographiques et critiques traiteront du théâtre, de Balconville à Zastrozzi, and burlesque to "théâtre engagé" — with individual entries on theatres, playwrights, actors, directors and plays as well as provincial reviews.

A timely project detailing an individual's contribution to the Canadian literary scene is Sandra Djwa's authorized biography of F.R. Scott — poet, and professor of law at McGill University, who died in 1984. Professor Djwa, of the English Department at Simon Fraser University, is completing her two-volume biography of Scott by discussing the last 20 years of his life. She will look not only at his literary achievements, but also at: his role as an anglophone Quebecer on the Royal Commission on Bilingualism and Biculturalism; his contribution as a member of Senator Goldenberg's Advisory Committee on the Constitution (1966-1970); his role on the committee which prepared the legal case for the Protestant School Board of Greater Montreal, opposing Quebec's Bills 22 and 101 (1966-1975); his reaction to accelerating separatism in Quebec during the late sixties; his stand on the War Measures Act; and the widespread influence of his teaching on federalism.

F.R. Scott was recognized as an important educator, but many others came before him. The history of women teachers in Quebec and Ontario, 1820-1920, will be addressed by Alison Prentice, from the Centre for Women's Studies, at the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education. As Professor Prentice notes, women numerically dominated the field of teaching by the latter part of the nineteenth century, but were generally unsuccessful in their quest to win recognition as professionals. Professor Prentice will use rural and urban data to focus on several aspects of their history: women's educational work in domestic settings, and the transition to public school teaching; the structure of nineteenth century teachers' lives — shifts in age structure, marital status, household status, ethnicity, religion, and vocational status (lay or clerical); and, the changing character of teachers' work in the classroom and of women teachers' consciousness of themselves as female members of the occupation and of the labour force in general. The associations that women teachers formed while identifying their problems and fighting to improve working conditions will also be discussed. Professor Prentice believes that, by setting women teachers' organizations in the context of the history of work and of the feminist and labour agitations of the time, a more complete picture of these early associations will be possible.

du théâtre télévisé au théâtre acadien en passant par le burlesque et le "théâtre engagé", avec des rubriques portant sur les salles, les dramaturges, les acteurs, les directeurs et les pièces, ainsi que les critiques provinciales.

Un projet qui tombe à point est une description de la contribution d'un personnage important de la scène littéraire canadienne, c'est-à-dire la biographie autorisée de F.R. Scott, poète et professeur de droit à l'Université McGill, mort en 1984. Sandra Djwa, du département d'anglais de l'Université Simon Fraser, termine en ce moment la biographie en deux volumes de ce grand homme qui porte sur les vingt dernières années de sa vie. Le professeur Djwa examine ses réalisations dans le domaine littéraire et son rôle en tant que membre québecois/anglophone à la Commission royale d'enquête sur le bilinguisme et le biculturalisme, du comité consultatif du Sénateur Goldenberg sur la constitution (1966-1970), et du comité de trois membres chargé de préparer la cause de la Commission des écoles protestantes de Montréal contre les projets de loi 22 et 101 du Québec (1966-1975). Elle examine aussi la réaction de Scott devant la montée du mouvement séparatiste au Québec pendant la fin des années soixante, sa position face à la Loi sur les mesures de guerre, et la vaste influence de son enseignement sur le fédéralisme.

F.R. Scott était reconnu comme un important éducateur, mais il eut de nombreux prédécesseurs ainsi que le montrera l'histoire des femmes enseignantes au Québec et en Ontario de 1820 à 1920 que tracera Alison Prentice du Centre d'études des femmes de l'Ontario Institute for Studies in Education. Comme le souligne le professeur Prentice, les femmes dominaient en nombre le domaine de l'enseignement à partir de la dernière partie du dix-neuvième siècle, mais en général elles avaient beaucoup de difficulté à se faire admettre comme des professionnels. Le professeur Prentice se servira de données sur les régions rurales et urbaines pour étudier plus précisément plusieurs aspects de l'histoire des enseignantes : le travail d'enseignante exercé par les femmes dans les maisons et la transition à l'enseignement dans les écoles publiques, l'organisation de la vie des enseignantes du dix-neuvième siècle, les changements dans la structure d'âge, l'état civil, la situation à la maison, l'ethnie, la religion, la vocation (laïque ou cléricale) et la nature changeante des travaux des enseignantes dans la classe et de la conscience qu'avaient les enseignantes d'elles-mêmes en tant que femmes participant à la main-d'oeuvre en général. Les associations d'enseignantes formées au fur et à mesure de l'identification des problèmes et les tentatives d'amélioration des conditions de travail seront également discutées. Le professeur Prentice croit qu'en situant les organisations d'enseignantes dans le contexte de l'histoire du travail et des revendications féministes et ouvrières de l'époque, elle pourra en peindre une image plus claire.

Another history project will focus on the City of Montreal. Jean-Claude Robert, of the History Department of the University of Quebec at Montreal, is particularly interested in the process of urbanization. His research project, entitled "Quartier, rue et population à Montréal, 1820-1851", will analyse the growth of two Montreal districts in the first half of the 19th century. Professor Robert will study the structures of urban life in order to better understand the mechanisms of urbanization in that context and during that period. The project has three specific objectives: first, to form an understanding, through a case study, of certain mechanisms of urbanization in the pre-industrial period; then to examine the stress and the relations that existed between the various places where people belonged (districts and streets), to establish their significance in the city and in urban life; lastly, in terms of methodology, to attempt to combine two approaches — mobility and sociability — in order to appreciate both the factors associated with movement and the factors associated with stability in the urban environment.

Researchers are not only talking about the urbanization of cities, they are also investigating the families involved in such moves. At a time when the structure of Canadian families is changing, and when a large proportion of the Canadian population is elderly, researchers are looking at the relationship between the family and aging parents in Canada. David Reid, of York University, will study the way in which adult children react to their elderly parent's needs for aid and support, in 200 families with a minimum of two adult children and a single elderly dependent parent. Professor Reid contends that adult children experience conflict between the competing obligations to their parent, their families, and their own commitments; his research will focus on how these children attempt to resolve such conflicts.

Another issue in the study of contemporary family is the concern about abduction or victimization of children. Daniel Yarmey, of the University of Guelph, has a two-year grant to study "Missing Children and Children's Eyewitness Memory". Professor Yarmey notes the absence of reliable empirical information on young children's practical memorial and cognitive capacities. This lacuna is important when increasing numbers of children are being allowed to testify in court. Professor Yarmey's objective is to provide empirical knowledge about children's awareness of personal safety precautions when accompanied by a caretaker; their mother's/guardian's and police beliefs about children's awareness of personal safety precautions; children's eyewitness memory of a potential abductor; and the effectiveness of inoculation training to increase the awareness of children regarding potential abductors. Professor Yarmey hopes to bridge the gap between prevention of children's victimizations and children's involvement in pre-trial identification of suspects.

Un autre projet de recherche historique porte sur la Ville de Montréal. Jean-Claude Robert, du département d'histoire de l'Université du Québec à Montréal, s'intéresse particulièrement à l'urbanisation de Montréal entre 1820 et 1851. Il a entrepris une recherche intitulée "Quartier, rue et population à Montréal, 1820-1851". L'objectif de cette enquête d'histoire sociale est de procéder à une analyse de la croissance de deux quartiers montréalais dans la première moitié du XIX^{e} siècle. La recherche porte sur les structures de la vie urbaine et vise à mieux comprendre les mécanismes de l'urbanisation à cette échelle et à cette époque. Le projet vise trois objectifs précis. D'abord comprendre, par une étude de cas, certains mécanismes de l'urbanisation pour la période préindustrielle. Ensuite examiner la tension et les rapports entre les divers lieux d'appartenance (quartier et rue), pour tenter d'établir leur signification dans la ville et dans la vie urbaine. Enfin, au plan méthodologique, tenter de combiner les approches de la mobilité et celle de la sociabilité de manière à saisir à la fois les éléments de mouvement et les éléments de stabilité dans le cadre urbain.

Les chercheurs traitent non seulement de l'urbanisation des villes mais aussi des réactions aux changements qu'elle suscite chez les familles touchées. À une époque où change la structure des familles canadiennes et où une grande partie de la population du Canada est âgée, les chercheurs étudient les relations entre la famille et les parents âgés au Canada. David Reid de l'Université York étudiera les réactions des adultes face aux besoins de leurs parents âgés et ce, dans deux cent familles comptant au minimum deux enfants adultes et un parent âgé dépendant.

Le professeur Reid soutient qu'il existe des conflits chez les enfants adultes face à leurs obligations envers leurs parents, leur famille et leurs propres engagements. Sa recherche portera principalement sur la façon dont ces "enfants" essaient de résoudre les conflits de ce type.

Un autre problème dans l'étude de la famille contemporaine est celui que constituent les enfants victimes d'enlèvement ou autres crimes. Daniel Yarmey, de l'Université Guelph, dispose d'une subvention de deux ans pour étudier les enfants disparus et la mémoire visuelle des enfants. Le professeur Yarmey a remarqué l'absence de données empiriques sur les aptitudes cognitives et la mémoire des jeunes enfants. Cette lacune est grave compte tenu du nombre croissant d'enfants autorisés à témoigner en cours. L'objectif du professeur Yarmey consiste à obtenir des données empiriques sur : la conscience qu'ont les enfants des mesures de sécurité personnelle, quand ils sont accompagnés d'un responsable; la mesure dans laquelle, selon la mère ou tuteur et la police, les enfants sont conscients de ces mesures de sécurité; et l'efficacité d'une formation préventive en vue d'augmenter la conscience qu'ont les enfants de certains dangers. Le professeur Yarmey espère ainsi parer au manque d'information sur la prévention des crimes contre les enfants et la participation des enfants victimes à l'identification des suspects avant les procès.

From family studies, and children and the courts, we move to the field of economics, in which important research is being done by Canadian scholars every year. Douglas Purvis, Professor of Economics and Director of the John Deutsch Institute for the Study of Economic Policy at Queen's University, received a two-year grant to make a comparison of Canadian and American unemployment rates. Professor Purvis describes the Canadian and American economies as having experienced a virtually complete business cycle during the past three years; a notable difference, however, is that the US recession was neither as severe nor as prolonged as the Canadian, and the US recovery has been stronger in terms of growth of real GNP and the associated drop in unemployment. Professor Purvis' work will involve two stages: in the first, he will confirm the view that differences in the behaviour of aggregate demand do not explain this experience; he will also question whether the different behaviour of unemployment can be explained in terms of differences in demographic patterns and participation rates, or whether the differential movement in unemployment rates reflects differences in growth of employment. Expecting that the first stage of research will not explain the differences in unemployment rates, Professor Purvis proposes a second stage in which he will investigate alternative explanations: the behaviour of the labour market; the behaviour of investment; the structural differences between the countries; and/or the changing composition of industry in the two economies.

Outre des études sur la famille et les enfants victimes, le domaine économique fait aussi l'objet d'importantes recherches conduites chaque année par des Canadiens. Douglas Purvis, professeur d'économique et directeur de l'Institut John Deutsch pour l'étude de la politique économique à l'Université Queen's, a reçu une subvention de deux ans en vue de comparer les taux de chômage canadiens et américains. Le professeur Purvis décrit les économies canadiennes et américaines comme ayant experimenté un cycle économique presque complet au cours des trois dernières années. Cependant, il y a une différence notable : la récession américaine n'a pas été aussi grave ni aussi prolongée que la récession canadienne et la reprise économique américaine a été plus forte du point de vue de la croissance du produit national brut réel et de la baisse connexe du taux de chômage. Le professeur Purvis travaillera en deux étapes. Il vérifiera d'abord s'il est vrai que les différences de fluctuations de la demande globale n'expliquent pas cette situation. Il mettra également en doute le fait que les différences de fluctuation des taux de chômage puissent être expliquées du point de vue des différences dans les modèles démographiques et les taux de participation et le fait que le mouvement différentiel des taux de chômage est dû aux différences observées dans la croissance des emplois. Comme il s'attend à ce que la première étape de la recherche n'explique pas les différences entre les taux de chômage, le professeur Purvis projette dans une deuxième étape d'examiner diverses explications possibles, soit : les fluctuations sur le marché du travail; les fluctuations de l'investissement; les différences structurelles entre les pays; ou la composition changeante de l'industrie dans les deux économies.

Strategic Grants Division

The five targeted themes of national interest continued to attract many applications. Award rates, both in project and dollar terms, were generally down, with the prominent exception of the Women and Work theme.

A sampling of projects, and lists of awards in these and other strategics programs, follows.

Women and Work

So many of Canada's best-known writers today are women that the question about whether or not writing is women's work does not arise. This was not always the case. Carole Gerson, of the English Department of the University of British Columbia, is looking at the literary and non-literary influences on Canadian women writers in the period 1830 to 1939, to determine why women wrote what they wrote; how they organized their private and public affairs to do so, and the resulting shape of their lives and careers. Professor Gerson will focus on 16 writers critically acknowledged to have been significant contributors to Canadian literary history. They will be studied in conjunction with a background group of some 25 secondary writers whose personal papers are in Canadian repositories. In addition to publications and papers of writers, publishers, editors, literary agents and anthologists, she will examine cultural periodicals, for the proportion and kinds of writing done by women, and for attitudes expressed toward women writers. The project will last three years.

Canadian Studies

It is difficult to record the history of working people since they leave few written traces. The union movement has, however, accumulated a substantial amount of documentation over the years. Jacques Rouillard, of the Department of History at the University of Montreal, wants to protect these records from loss as a result of union moves or mergers. Unions live very much in the present and in many cases are unaware of the extent of their documentation. Professor Rouillard wants to prepare a guide to identify the archived resources relating to international unions in Montreal, to help make good this deficiency. He will take the opportunity to make union leaders aware of the importance of their archives and will encourage them to deposit them (with the Archives Department at the University of Montreal, of course).

La Division des subventions stratégiques

Les cinq thèmes d'intérêt national continuent d'attirer de nombreuses demandes. Les niveaux de subventions, tant en nombre de projets qu'en valeur, ont dans l'ensemble baissé, à l'exception du thème "les femmes et le travail".

Voici un exemple de projet pour chaque thème et les listes d'octrois pour les programmes stratégiques.

Les femmes et le travail

Une telle multitude de femmes sont aujourd'hui au nombre des écrivains les plus connus du Canada que la question de savoir si l'écriture constitue ou non un travail de femme ne se pose plus. Ce ne fut pas toujours le cas cependant. Carole Gerson, du département d'anglais de l'Université de la Colombie-Britannique, examine les influences littéraires sur les femmes écrivains canadiennes de 1830 à 1939, afin de déterminer pourquoi elles écrivaient, ce qu'elles écrivaient, comment elles organisaient leur vie privée et publique pour le faire, et la forme que prenaient par conséquent leur vie et leur carrière. Le professeur Gerson se concentrera sur 16 femmes écrivains reconnues pour leur importante contribution à l'histoire canadienne de la littérature. Elle les étudiera en conjonction avec un groupe de 25 écrivains d'importance secondaire dont on possède des documents personnels dans des archives canadiennes. En plus des publications et des documents des écrivains, éditeurs, agences littéraires et anthologistes, elle étudiera les périodiques culturels afin de déterminer la proportion et le type d'oeuvres écrites par des femmes et les attitudes adoptées envers les femmes écrivains de l'époque. Le projet durera trois ans.

Les études canadiennes

Il est difficile de faire l'histoire des travailleurs car ces derniers laissent peu de traces écrites. Le mouvement syndical a pourtant réuni au cours des années une documentation imposante. Jacques Rouillard, du département d'histoire de l'Université de Montréal, veut protéger ces archives car elles risquent de disparaître à la faveur d'un déménagement ou d'une fusion de syndicats. Ces derniers vivent intensément dans le présent et ne connaissent pas souvent l'étendue de leur documentation. Monsieur Rouillard veut dresser un guide des fonds d'archives concernant les syndicats internationaux à Montréal pour combler en partie la lacune. Il prendra l'occasion de sensibiliser les dirigeants syndicaux à l'importance de leurs archives et il les incitera à en faire le dépôt (au Service d'archives de l'Université de Montréal naturellement).

Population Aging

The role of the family in providing care for the elderly is an important factor for developing policy in an "aging" Canada. John B. Bond, of the Department of Family Studies, University of Manitoba, addresses the question in his study, "Intergenerational Relationships in a Manitoba German Mennonite Setting: Who Cares?" Comparisons will be made between age groups of Mennonites. Within age groups, Professor Bond will compare Mennonites and non-Mennonites. In answering the "Who cares?" question, he will look generally at the effects of religion and ethnicity on our treatment of the frail elderly.

The Family and the Socialization of Children

Some 90,000 unemployed men, in 1984, were living in families with working wives and dependent children. The effect of this on fathers' perceptions of their children's behaviour and development is being studied by Laura C. Johnson, of the Social Planning Council of Metropolitan Toronto. The Social Planning Council will use results to develop recommendations on employment policy and support services for families. The study will focus on the effects of unemployment on fathers themselves, on their parental role, on the family and on the children. Some 200 men living in two-parent families with one or more children 12 years or under will be involved — workers from a variety of industrial sectors who have lost their jobs through lay-off or plant closure within three months of the interview. A follow-up with both parents will be conducted after six months have passed, and another, six months later, for those still unemployed.

Human Context of Science and Technology

"How are Canadian youth 'growing up' with computers?" is a question that Thomas E. Kieren, Department of Secondary Education, University of Alberta, seeks to answer, with a study on access, values and social issues related to micro-technology. The national study involves regional researchers in Alberta, Ontario, Quebec and Newfoundland. The first stage will be a large-scale survey of 10-, 13- and 16-year olds,

Vieillissement de la population

La connaissance du rôle de la famille dans les soins aux personnes âgées constitue un facteur important de l'élaboration d'une politique dans un Canada "vieillissant". John B. Bond, du département des études familiales de l'Université du Manitoba, traite de la question dans une étude intitulée "Les relations entre générations dans les communautés mennonites allemandes du Manitoba : qui s'en occupe ?" Il fera des comparaisons entre les différents groupes d'âge de mennonites et de non-mennonites. Il répondra à la question "qui s'en occupe ?" en examinant l'ensemble des effets de la religion et de l'ethnie sur le traitement des personnes âgées.

La famille et la socialisation de l'enfant

En 1984, environ 90 000 hommes étaient en chômage et vivaient dans une famille dont la femme travaillait et où il y avait des enfants à charge. L'effet de cette situation sur la perception qu'ont les pères du comportement et du développement de leurs enfants fait l'objet d'une étude de Laura C. Johnson, du Conseil de planification sociale de la région métropolitaine de Toronto. Ce Conseil utilisera les résultats pour élaborer des recommandations sur la politique d'emploi et les services de soutien de la famille. L'étude visera avant tout les effets du chômage sur les pères eux-mêmes, sur leur rôle de parent, sur la famille et sur les enfants. Environ 200 hommes qui vivent dans une famille biparentale et qui ont un enfant ou plus de moins de douze ans y participeront. Il s'agira de travailleurs de divers secteurs industriels qui ont perdu leur emploi à la suite d'une mise à pied ou dont l'entreprise a fermé dans les trois mois avant l'entrevue. Un suivi des deux parents sera assuré six et douze mois plus tard dans le cas de ceux qui seront toujours sans emploi.

La science, la technologie et les valeurs humaines

"Comment les jeunes canadiens grandissent-ils dans l'univers des ordinateurs ?" Thomas E. Kieren, du département d'études secondaires de l'Université d'Alberta cherche à répondre à cette question en étudiant l'accès aux ordinateurs, ainsi que les valeurs et les questions sociales liées à la microtechnologie. L'étude nationale requiert la participation de chercheurs régionaux en Alberta, en Ontario, au Québec et à Terre-Neuve. La première étape consistera à sonder sur une grande échelle des jeunes de 10, 13 et 16 ans, to ascertain their access to micro-computers, the social issues they perceive with respect to computers, and the relationships between access and social impact. There will be follow-up interviews with a sub-sample and further interviews with a small number of groups using computers in various ways. Understanding relationships between access concepts and value concepts may lead to a better understanding of humane and beneficial uses of computers and clearer characterization of the meanings of computer use. The results should prove useful i the development of social and educational policies.

Managing the Organization in Canada

In this age of home banking and telebanking, viability is as much a question of technology as of economics. The emphasis is on network automation and electronic transfer of funds and this is producing a new form of collective action: strategic cooperation. The cooperative strategy, on the other hand, is based on a linkage between social and economic areas to find in the cooperative itself an instrument of economic and social change. Jean-Guy Desforges, of the École des Hautes Études commerciales (Centre de gestion des cooperatives), wants to compare market logic with the logic of collective action in a study on the cooperative financial network. He has two objectives: to identify the strategic phases of development of the Fédération des Caisses Populaires Desjardins de Montréal et de l'Ouest du Québec (a group of Montreal and Western Quebec credit unions); and to discover mechanisms, processes, structural modifications or cultural changes likely to favour the emergence of new cooperative strategies in the network.

afin de déterminer dans quelle mesure ils ont accès à des ordinateurs et les liens entre cet accès et l'incidence sociale. Thomas Kieren sondera ensuite un sous-échantillon de participants et des petits groupes qui utilisent les ordinateurs de diverses façons. La compréhension des relations entre les concepts d'accès et de valeur permettront de mieux comprendre les avantages que présentent les ordinateurs pour l'adolescent et de mieux caractériser les sens de l'utilisation de ces machines. Les résultats devraient servir à l'élaboration de politiques sociales et éducatives.

La gestion de l'organisation au Canada

À l'heure du "home banking" et du "telebanking" la viabilité est autant technologique qu'économique. L'emphase est sur l'automatisation du réseau et le transfert électronique de fonds qui produit une nouvelle forme de l'action collective : la coopération stratégique. La stratégie coopérative part au contraire d'une articulation entre le social et l'économique pour trouver dans l'entreprise coopérative l'instrument de transformation d'un contexte économique et social. Jean-Guy Desforges, du Centre de gestion des coopératives de l'École des Hautes Études commerciales, veut comparer la logique du marché avec la logique de l'action collective dans une étude sur le réseau financier coopératif. Il vise deux objectifs : l'identification des phases stratégiques de développement de la Fédération des Caisses Populaires Desjardins de Montréal et de l'Ouest du Québec; et la découverte de mécanismes, processus, modifications structurelles ou changements culturels susceptibles de favoriser l'émergence de nouvelles stratégies coopératives dans le réseau.

Fellowships Division

Support for human resources development in the Council is divided between three programs: Doctoral Fellowships (72 per cent of the fellowships budget in 1985-86); Postdoctoral Fellowships (21 per cent); and Special MA Scholarships (seven per cent). The now-defunct Leave Fellowships Program was administered by the Fellowships Division.

Notes on fellowship recipients follow.

The Jules and Gabrielle Léger Fellowship

The 1985 Jules and Gabrielle Léger Fellowship for studies on the history, role and functions of the Crown and the Governor General in a parliamentary democracy was awarded to Janet Ajzenstat, of Hamilton, Ontario. Dr. Ajzenstat is studying the views of two French-Canadian political writers, Pierre Bédard and Étienne Parent, on the British "monarchic" system of government established in the Canadas in the 19th century. In addition to increasing our understanding of the foundations of Canada's political institutions, she hopes to illuminate current debates about the Constitution, conditions for stable parliamentary government, and the place of the Cabinet. She argues that the monarchic system was meant to guard against the rise of one-party government and ensure a continuing political opposition in Canada.

Dr. Ajzenstat graduated from the University of Toronto in 1959 with a BA in art and archaeology. She was awarded an MA in political science by McMaster University in 1972 and a PhD in political economy by Toronto in 1979.

The Jules and Gabrielle Léger Fellowship was established in 1979 by the Government of Canada in honour of the Légers' contribution to the office of Governor General. The award is worth $20,000 plus up to $5,000 for research and travel expenses. The award after 1986-87 will be granted every two years, with a doubling of both the fellowship and the research and travel grant, to $40,000 and $10,000 respectively.

The Bora Laskin National Fellowship in Human Rights Research

The first Bora Laskin National Fellowship in Human Rights Research, named for the late Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Canada, and established to encourage research and the development of expertise in the field of human rights, was awarded to Douglas Sanders.

La Division des bourses

L'aide au développement des ressources humaines au Conseil est procurée en vertu de trois programmes : les bourses de doctorat (72 pour cent du budget des bourses en 1985-1986), les bourses postdoctorales (21 pour cent) et les bourses spéciales de maîtrise (7 pour cent). La Division des bourses administrait aussi le programme des bourses de travail libre, maintenant abandonné.

Voici des remarques sur les bénéficiaires de bourses.

La bourse Jules et Gabrielle Léger

La bourse Jules et Gabrielle Léger pour la recherche sur l'histoire, le rôle et les fonctions de la Couronne et du Gouverneur général au sein d'une démocratie parlementaire, a été attribuée à Janet Ajzenstat, de Hamilton, Ontario, pour 1985-1986. Madame Ajzenstat étudie la pensée de deux écrivains politiques canadiens-français, Pierre Bédard et Étienne Parent, au sujet du système "monarchique" de gouvernement établi dans les deux Canadas au cours du XIX^{e} siècle. Elle espère que ses travaux feront mieux comprendre les fondements des institutions politiques canadiennes, et contribueront au débat actuel sur la Constitution, le rôle du Cabinet et les conditions nécessaires à la stabilité d'un gouvernement parlementaire. Elle est d'avis que le système monarchique était destiné à éviter l'émergence d'un parti unique et à assurer la permanence d'une opposition.

Madame Ajzenstat est diplômée des universités de Toronto et McMaster. Elle a obtenu un BA en art et archéologie de Toronto en 1959, une maîtrise en science politique de McMaster en 1972 et un doctorat en économie politique de Toronto en 1979.

La bourse Jules et Gabrielle Léger a été créée en 1979 par le Gouvernement du Canada pour exprimer la reconnaissance des éminents services rendus par le très honorable Jules Léger et Madame Léger. La bourse est d'une valeur de 20 000 $ plus une allocation de 5 000 $ pour les frais de recherche et de déplacement.

La Bourse canadienne Bora Laskin pour la recherche sur les droits de la personne

La première Bourse canadienne Bora Laskin pour la recherche sur les droits de la personne, désignée ainsi en l'honneur de feu le Juge en chef de la Cour suprême du Canada et créée pour encourager la recherche dans le domaine des droits de la personne et la formation de spécialistes en la matière, a été accordée à Douglas Sanders.

Dr. Sanders, professor of law at the University of British Columbia, will study "The Development of Standards for the Treatment of Indigenous Populations — In Canada and Internationally". His goal is to make a policy oriented study of Canadian developments, with an emphasis on current directions; a description of the efforts now underway to define standards at the international level; and observations on the interrelationship and direction of these two streams of development.

Professor Sanders is a graduate of the University of Alberta and the University of California at Berkeley. He has worked with the Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs, was Director of the Native Law Centre at Carleton University, and acted as consultant to the Alaska Highway Pipeline Inquiry. In 1981 he was invited as a visiting professor to the University of Tromso, Norway; and, in 1983, to the University of Hokkaido, Japan. He has published numerous books and articles about aboriginal peoples.

The Bora Laskin fellowship is worth $45,000, plus up to $10,000 for research and travel expenses.

The Queen's Fellowships

One hundred scholarships are awarded annually to outstanding students wishing to pursue a master's degree in the social sciences or humanities in a Canadian university. Of these 100, three are chosen to receive a Queen's Fellowship, for exceptional students in the field of Canadian studies. Following are the Queen's Fellows for 1985-86.

Kent Bittermann, of Sydney, Nova Scotia, will study nineteenth century agriculture in Cape Breton — an aspect of Maritime history that has received little attention. He will discuss demographic change and out-migration, technological change and merchants, land ownership and use, and social structure.

Sean Cadigan, of Mount Pearl, Newfoundland, will study the social history of the Atlantic region. His thesis, concerning the relationship between culture and region, will involve the evaluation of working-class support for Liberal and Conservative party members who endorsed Maritime Rights Movement positions in the 1919-27 period.

Dara Culhane, of New Westminster, British Columbia, will study the relationship between Canadian Native Indian women and Canadian society. Ms. Culhane will combine traditional and new approaches to the question in order to consider the implications of Native Indian women being dependent upon state-administered welfare subsidies for the bulk of their subsistence and of being female members of a stigmatized minority group within Canada.

Le professeur Sanders, qui enseigne le droit à l'Université de la Colombie-Britannique, étudiera le développement des normes de traitement des populations autochtones au Canada et à l'étranger. Il mènera une étude des politiques canadiennes dans ce domaine au Canada, en insistant sur les orientations actuelles; décrira les efforts accomplis pour définir des normes au niveau international, et fera des observations sur les rapports et les orientations des deux courants de développement.

Le professeur Sanders est un diplômé de l'Université d'Alberta et de l'Université Berkeley en Californie. Il a travaillé avec l'Union des chefs indiens de la Colombie-Britannique et il a été directeur du Centre de droit autochtone à l'Université Carleton et conseil auprès de la Commission d'enquête sur l'autoroute et le pipeline de l'Alaska. En 1981, il a été professeur invité à l'Université de Tromso en Norvège et, en 1983, à l'Université Hokkaido au Japon. Il a publié de nombreux livres et articles sur les peuples aborigènes.

La Bourse Bora Laskin est de 45 000 $, plus une allocation maximale de 10 000 $ pour frais de recherche et de déplacement.

Les bourses de la Reine

Une centaine de bourses sont accordées chaque année à des étudiants hautement qualifiés qui désirent poursuivre des études de maîtrise en sciences humaines dans une université canadienne. Parmi les cent boursiers, trois reçoivent la Bourse de la Reine, décernée à des étudiants exceptionnels qui se spécialisent en études canadiennes. Sont cités ci-après les trois titulaires de la Bourse de la Reine en 1985-1986.

Kent Bittermann de Sydney (Nouvelle-Écosse) étudiera un aspect de l'histoire des provinces maritimes qui a reçu peu d'attention jusqu'a maintenant, soit l'agriculture du Cap-Breton aux XIX^{e} siècle. Il se penchera sur les sujets suivants : changements démographiques, migration, changements technologiques et monde marchand, propriété foncière, utilisation des sols et organisation sociale.

Sean Cadigan de Mount Pearl (Terre-Neuve) étudiera l'histoire sociale de la région de l'Atlantique. Sa thèse, portant sur les liens qui existent entre la culture et le milieu, inclura une évaluation de l'appui accordé par la classe ouvrière aux membres des partis libéral et conservateur qui ont endossé les couleurs du mouvement pour la défense des droits des provinces maritimes entre 1919 et 1927.

Dara Culhane de New Westminster (Colombie-Britannique) étudiera le rapport entre les Amérindiennes du Canada et la société canadienne. Madame Culhane fera appel à des techniques nouvelles et traditionnelles pour examiner les conséquences du fait que les Amérindiennes dépendent des services d'assistance sociale pour assurer le gros de leur subsistance et qu'elles appartiennent à un groupe minoritaire visible au Canada.

Doctoral Fellowships

Timothy Jackson has a Doctoral Fellowship to study musicology as a visiting student at Ludwig-Maximilians-Universität, in Munich. Mr. Jackson has been examining autograph sources for Richard Strauss' music and, with the permission of the composer's daughter-in-law, transcribing some of Strauss' unpublished sketches. These are located in the Strauss Archive in Garmisch, in the Bavarian State Library, and in private collections in Munich. Finding in the later work Strauss' profound grief over the devastation of the Second World War and his own impending death, Mr. Jackson has chosen as his dissertation, "The Metamorphosen and Letzte Lieder of Richard Strauss: A Study of Compositional Method". The thesis will contain analyses of the finished compositions and detailed commentary on the sketches and the compositional process.

Robert Dalpé, studying for a doctorate in political science at the University of Montreal, has embarked on a thesis entitled, "Les politiques d'achat canadiennes en télécommunications". The objective is to show to what extent the particular requirements of government create potential for innovation in industry. This research is applied to the Canadian situation in the telecommunications sector, including land-line systems and satellites. The bulk of the research aims to show how various government policies have favoured innovation, while the second part of the study details certain standards set by governments. The final part of the research deals with the impact of these measures on the sector, in regard to the competitive position of Canadian companies in the international markets.

Postdoctoral Fellowships

Marlene Moretti, completing her PhD in psychology at Simon Fraser University, will pursue postdoctoral research at New York University with an expert in the field of social cognition. Ms. Moretti's doctoral work concerned the effects of mood on the recognition and processing of self-relevant social information; such data are pertinent to understanding whether individuals experiencing transitory alteration of mood, or chronic affective disturbance such as depression, share a common data base of social and interpersonal information. Ms. Moretti will continue to investigate the importance of affect in processing self-relevant information, in her postdoctoral research.

Valerie Haines, finishing her doctorate at the University of North Carolina, will travel to Oxford to carry out postdoctoral research on Herbert Spencer and modern social theory. Spencer was one of the most important nineteenth century social theorists,

Les bourses de doctorat

Timothy Jackson a obtenu une bourse de doctorat en vue d'étudier la musicologie à titre d'étudiant-invité à l'Université Ludwig-Maximilians de Munich. M. Jackson a examiné les manuscrits autographes de Richard Strauss et, avec la permission de la belle-fille du compositeur, il a transcrit certaines esquisses inédites. Ces documents se trouvent aux archives Strauss de Garmish, à la bibliothèque nationale de Bavière et dans des collections privées à Munich. Après avoir dénoté un profond sentiment de tristesse dans les oeuvres des dernières années de la vie de Strauss, tristesse attribuable aux dévastations de la Seconde Guerre mondiale et à la mort que le compositeur savait imminente, M. Jackson a choisi de faire porter sur les Metamorphosen et les derniers Lieder le sujet de sa dissertation intulée "The Metamorphosen and Letzte Lieder of Richard Strauss: A Study of Compositional Method". La thèse inclura des analyses de compositions achevées, ainsi que des commentaires détaillés sur les esquisses et l'art de la composition de Strauss.

Robert Dalpé, étudiant au doctorat en science politique de l'Université de Montréal, a entrepris une thèse intitulée : "Les politiques d'achat canadiennes en télécommunications". L'objectif de la recherche est de montrer dans quelle mesure les besoins particuliers des gouvernements créent un potentiel d'innovations dans l'industrie. Cette recherche est appliquée au cas canadien dans le secteur des télécommunications, y compris la téléphonie et les satellites. La partie la plus substantielle vise à montrer comment diverses politiques gouvernementales ont favorisé l'innovation, la seconde vise à présenter certaines normes exigées par les gouvernements. La dernière question a trait à l'impact de ces mesures sur le secteur en situant les firmes canadiennes dans la concurrence internationale.

Les bourses postdoctorales

Marlene Moretti, qui termine son doctorat en psychologie à l'Université Simon Fraser, poursuivra des recherches postdoctorales à l'Université de New York avec un expert en connaissance sociale. Les travaux de Madame Moretti porteront sur les effets de l'humeur dans la reconnaissance et le traitement des informations sociales pertinentes pour soi; les données collectées permettront de déterminer si les personnes qui subissent des modifications d'humeur passagères ou des dérangements affectifs chroniques, comme la dépression, partagent une base commune d'information sur la société et les relations interpersonnelles. Dans ses recherches postdoctorales, Madame Moretti poursuivra ses travaux sur l'importance de l'humeur dans le traitement de l'information importante pour soi.

Valerie Haines termine son doctorat à l'Université de la Caroline du Nord et se rendra à Oxford pour effectuer des recherches postdoctorales sur Herbert Spencer et la théorie sociale moderne. Spencer a été whose influence on the development of sociology is widely acknowledged yet whose work is relatively unstudied. Ms. Haines' goal is to sensitize sociologists to the importance of Spencer for contemporary social theory and, by encouraging a review of Spencer, for possible insights into other central problems of social theory. In her postdoctoral research, Ms. Haines proposes to address one of those problems, the relation between individual action and social structure, using both a critical and constructive approach.

Leave Fellowships

The last group of leave fellowship applications was adjudicated in 1985-1986. Two of the recipients are Stanley Barrett and Fernand Ouellet.

For the past five years, Professor Barrett, of the University of Guelph, has been engaged in an extensive study of the Canadian radical right, focusing on three distinct groups: the Ku Klux Klan, especially in Ontario and British Columbia; the Western Guard and its successors; and a dozen organizations such as the Nationalist Socialist Party and the British People's Party. Through the collection of primary documents on right-wing organizations, and unstructured interviews with leaders and members of such associations, Professor Barrett has statistical data on almost 600 members of such groups. His objective, during his sabbatical year, is to produce an exhaustive scholarly study of the Canadian radical right, in historical and comparative contexts.

Professor Barrett has been invited to spend his sabbatical at The Centre for Research in Ethnic Relations at Warwick University; he will also do research at the Laboratoire de Psychologie social, in Paris.

Fernand Ouellet of York University (formerly of the University of Ottawa), has been conducting research for a number of years into the social dynamics of the insurrections of 1837-38. In order to explore the relations between the social classes and the revolutionary movement in greater depth, he has attempted to identify the group of insurgents more specifically, drawing up a list of them and determining the particulars of the individuals involved. Professor Ouellet plans: to spend time at the Archives nationales du Québec to review a number of records of a legal nature; to examine A. Fauteux's collection in Montreal, which contains information on 2,000 individuals involved in revolutionary activities; and to extend his inquiries to what might be termed the industry and artisan sector. This research addresses a long-standing question: How did society under the social/governmental system that was developed in the 17th and 18th centuries in the St. Lawrence Valley change with the advance of capitalism in its various forms?

l'un des plus importants théoriciens sociaux du dix-neuvième siècle dont l'influence sur le développement de la sociologie est largement reconnue, mais son oeuvre demeure assez peu étudiée. Madame Haines vise à changer cette situation en sensibilisant les sociologues à l'importance de Spencer au regard de la théorie sociale contemporaine et en encourageant une étude de ce théoricien en vue de trouver de nouvelles solutions aux problèmes fondamentaux de la théorie sociale. Dans sa recherche postdoctorale, Madame Haines se propose de traiter plus particulièrement l'un de ces problèmes, soit la relation entre l'action individuelle et la structure sociale, au moyen de méthodes "critiques" et "constructives".

Les bourses de travail libre

Le dernier groupe de demandes de bourses de travail libre a été examiné en 1985-1986. Deux des bénéficiaires sont Stanley Barrett et Fernand Ouellet.

Au cours des cinq dernières années, le professeur Stanley Barrett, de l'Université Guelph, a effectué une étude approfondie sur l'extrême-droite canadienne, centrée sur trois groupes distincts : le Ku Klux Klan, surtout en Ontario et en Colombie-Britannique, le Western Guard et ses successeurs, et une douzaine d'organisations comme le Parti national socialiste et le British People's Party. Par le biais de documents collectés sur les organisations d'extrême-droite et d'entrevues non structurées avec les dirigeants et les membres de ces associations, le professeur Barrett a rassemblé des données statistiques sur presque 600 membres de la droite canadienne. Son objectif, au cours de cette année sabbatique, est de rédiger une étude académique approfondie sur l'extrême-droite canadienne dans un contexte historique et comparatif.

Le professeur Barrett a été invité à passer son année sabbatique au Centre de recherche sur les relations ethniques de l'Université Warwick; il effectuera également des recherches au Laboratoire de psychologie sociale à Paris.

Depuis plusieurs années, Fernand Ouellet, de l'Université York (anciennement de l'Université d'Ottawa), oriente ses recherches sur la dynamique sociale des insurrections de 1837-1838. Afin de mieux explorer les rapports entre les classes sociales et le mouvement révolutionnaire, il a tenté de cerner plus particulièrement le groupe des insurgés, d'en constituer la liste et d'établir les coordonnées des individus qui la composent. Monsieur Ouellet s'est proposé de faire un séjour aux Archives nationales du Québec afin de revoir un certain nombre de dossiers de caractère judiciaire; de vérifier, à Montréal, la collection A. Fauteux, laquelle contient des informations sur 2 000 individus mêlés aux événements révolutionnaires; d'étendre son enquête à ce qui peut être appelé le secteur industriel et artisanal. Cette recherche porte sur un problème de longue durée : comment la société d'ancien régime qui s'était constituée aux XVII^{e} et XVIII^{e} siècles dans la vallée du Saint-Laurent s'est-elle transformée à mesure que le capitalisme sous ses différentes formes a progressé ?

Research Communication and International Relations Division

The moratorium on learned journals applications was lifted and a major review saw an increase in journals supported to 154, with funding guaranteed over three years. In addition to providing stability for planning, the re-evaluation was essential, given that 190 journals were applying for $2 million, as against the 116 journals being funded from a $1.8 million budget. The Council chose to let the system be self-adjusting and self-regulating, rather than to impose controls and central decision-making. A special grant for 1986-87, equal to 25 per cent of the first-year grant, will be made possible by a one-time increase by the Government. The money may be used for any purpose, including supplementing the operating budget or improving the use of new technologies or marketing strategies.

Some 160 scholarly books were published under the program administered by the Canadian Federation for the Humanities and the Social Science Federation of Canada, with a $900,000 budget. (As an example of the importance of the program, McGill-Queen's Press reported that five of its supported titles had won major national or international awards during the year.) Sustaining grants were made to the two Federations, as well as to the Royal Society and the Association canadienne-française pour l'avancement des sciences (ACFAS). Some 80 associations received assistance totalling $1.5 million for administrative expenses, attendance at annual meetings and special projects. Some $550,000 was granted for attendance at Learned Societies meetings. Other scholarly conferences in Canada received support totalling some $700,000.

A major event in the International Relations year was the visit by a team of Canadian economists to China, under the bilateral arrangement between Canada and the People's Republic. Canadian and foreign scholars benefited from exchanges under formal agreements between the Council and parallel agencies in France, Japan, Hungary and China, for a total $210,000. In addition, 380 awards, totalling $590,000, were made for travel to international conferences.

La Division de la diffusion de la recherche et relations internationales

Le moratoire sur les demandes concernant les revues savantes a été levé, et une révision importante a entraîné l'augmentation de l'aide à ces dernières, 154 d'entre elles recevant maintenant un financement garanti pour trois ans. Il fallait absolument procéder à une réévaluation, afin d'assurer une certaine stabilité sur le plan de la planification, compte tenu du fait que 190 revues ont demandé au total 2 millions de dollars, alors que seulement 116 revues avaient pu être subventionnées au moyen d'un budget de 1,8 million de dollars. Le Conseil a choisi de laisser le système s'adapter et se réglementer de lui-même, plutôt que d'imposer des contrôles et des décisions centrales. Grâce à une augmentation consentie par le gouvernement, il sera maintenant possible d'accorder une subvention spéciale en 1986-1987 équivalente à 25 pour cent de la subvention octroyée la première année. Les crédits peuvent servir à diverses fins, suppléer le budget d'opération ou améliorer l'utilisation des nouvelles technologies ou les stratégies de commercialisation.

Environ 160 livres savants ont été publiés dans le cadre du programme administré par la Fédération canadienne des études humaines et la Fédération canadienne des sciences sociales, et dont le budget s'établit à 900 000 $. (Comme exemple de l'importance du programme, McGill-Queen's Press a fait savoir que cinq livres publiés en vertu de cette aide ont remporté des prix nationaux ou internationaux au cours de l'année.) Des subventions de soutien ont été accordées aux deux fédérations, ainsi qu'à la Société royale du Canada et à l'Association canadienne-française pour l'avancement des sciences (ACFAS). Environ 80 associations ont reçu une aide totalisant 1,5 million de dollars au titre de dépenses administratives, de frais de participation à des réunions annuelles et de projets spéciaux. Quelques 550 000 $ ont été versés pour la participation aux réunions des sociétés savantes. D'autres conférences savantes du Canada, 179 exactement, ont reçu de l'aide totalisant environ 700 000 $.

Un des événements majeurs de l'année dans le domaine des relations internationales a été la visite en Chine d'une équipe d'économistes canadiens en vertu d'une entente bilatérale passée entre le Canada et la République Populaire de Chine. Des chercheurs canadiens et étrangers ont participé à des échanges dans le cadre d'ententes officielles conclues entre le Conseil et des organismes parallèles de la France, du Japon, de la Hongrie et de la Chine. Le total des subventions a été de 210 000 $. En outre, 380 bourses totalisant 590 000 $ ont été accordées pour la participation à des conférences internationales.

Some 90 Canadian scholars serving on boards of international scholarly organizations received awards totalling $120,000, while one international secretariat in Canada received a first award and four others continuing support. Four international congresses in Canada were supported. Sixteen awards for international collaborative research were made and 10 Canadian universities received a total $84,000 to host distinguished scholars from Europe and the United States. Nineteen Canadian researchers received grants to lecture abroad.

Environ 90 canadiens, membres de conseils d'organisations internationales savantes, ont reçu au total 120 000 $. Un secrétariat international installé au Canada a obtenu une première bourse tandis que quatre autres se sont vu accorder un renouvellement de leur bourse. Quatre congrès internationaux tenus au Canada ont aussi été financés. Seize bourses de collaboration scientifique internationale ont été octroyées et 10 universités canadiennes ont obtenu au total 84 000 $ pour recevoir des chercheurs distingués de l'Europe et des États-Unis. Dix-neuf chercheurs canadiens ont reçu des subventions pour tournées de conférences à l'étranger.
